

*Picture from Left to Right, Up and Down: Benadet; the five teachers for rural futures students in front of the Makerere University School of Education; Winfred; Stacy Dry Lara, GWI Executive Director with the five Teachers for Rural Futures Students; Makerere University; the five Teachers for Rural Futures Students.
All photo rights obtained previously.*

The generous donations to the Graduate Women International Teachers for Rural Futures project through 2019 have been greatly appreciated and have allowed our five student teachers to continue their studies, live in safe accommodations and access adequate food. All five girls in the Teachers for Rural Futures programme recently studied hard for their end of term exams. After spending the holidays with their families in the rural district of Buyende in Eastern Uganda, our student teachers will return to Makerere University in Kampala where they will continue to study and mentor younger girls in the programme. Recalling their first days at Makerere University, all of the girls sponsored by GWI send their heartfelt gratitude to the GWI contributors for their life-changing support.

Graduate Women International looks forward to making positive contributions to rural communities in Uganda and beyond with your continued support in 2020.

To read more about our project, please visit our website HERE.

With gratitude,

Stacy Dry Lara Executive Director