

Teachers for Rural Futures Students Obtain Summer Internships

The GWI Teachers for Rural Futures students are in the midst of a summer internship that aims to assess their achievement thus far in the teaching programme at Makerere University. Thanks to the generosity of our donors, these five amazing and talented young women are gaining practical experience as teachers and university credits this summer at this internship hosted at Lunar International College in their home district of Buyende in Uganda. According to one of our students, “It (the internship) is going on quite well although we have faced many challenges including additional financial assistance but we have managed to bear some”.

Another one of the girls, wrote to me saying, “Thank you, and Graduate Women International for the support you have rendered to us because ever since you started funding there is a transformation and at least a step ahead from where were and looking ahead to transforming more girls to be like us”.

GWI adds to this by expressing our sincere thanks to all of our donors - current and future.

To read more about our project, please visit our website HERE.

With gratitude,

Stacy Dry Lara Executive Director